

BETTER CARE, BETTER VALUE

Occupational therapists (OTs) are high-value health care practitioners who work with clients in hospitals, care homes, and in the community to minimize the impacts of chronic health issues on individuals and communities. Whether it's an older adult aging in place, a child with autism, or someone with physical or psychological disabilities, OTs can help people live healthier, safer, and more fulfilling lives.

SASKATCHEWAN NEEDS OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY - EVERYWHERE.

Have you or your loved ones been waiting too long for occupational therapy services?

Do you have difficulties obtaining the services of an OT?

If yes, we need your input to a survey that asks for an OT university education program at the University of Saskatchewan and/or contact your MLA.
